Weymouth (Mass.). The writer refers to a "Pierpont sonnet" in connection with an anniversary program and a speech of the addressee's. The writer would not have objected to publication of the sonnet. "As to initials...why should I care? No reader of the Xtian Register is likely to know them except yourself". A Mrs.Miller, who was preparing a monograph of Harriet Martineau, sent to the writer for materials. The writer wished her success, "as for the good of the world there could not be too many lives of so grand a character & so noble a woman." Some parts of Mrs.Miller's little book are very good and then, "when she interviewed James Martineau & Ellen Higgison (the dear sister of Harriet) obt[illegible] a quantity of poison flies with which she has spoiled h[illegible]pot of ointment." James Martineau "furnished her with hints, she says, for which she

J.Martineau and Mrs.Miller "together set themselves to deny to Harriet's autobiography any claim to credit or notice - but six editions of a 6 dollar book are proof enough of its goodness." James Martineau was Harriet's idol too, "till he compelled her to know him as the bad man & family tyrant he is ..." Mr..Thomas Martineau, coexecutor with the writer, must not be blamed for her exposure of James Martineau. Mrs. Miller did not know Harriet M. She is James M.'s tool and "women all see that she does not know enough to defend herself from being used to her own discredit."

To Rev. James Freeman Clarke

‹Leicester, Mass.› The writer asks Rev. Clarke if he has read the biography of Garrison by his children. Discusses G.'s similarity to Peter the Hermit. Thinks Garrison's great virtue was his avoidance of compromise. Believes Slavery would have continued to grow if the Garrisonian Abolitionists hadn't stopped it. Discusses Dr. Channing's claim to the leadership of the Anti-Slavery movement. Says the Unitarian writers have ignored the biography of Garrison.
